We inform you that present website (hereafter: website) uses "cookies" in order to improve quality of services and to make the usage of the website easier (to make communication and interaction with our website easier), as well as to handle safety and data management risks properly.

A cookie is such a group of data (alphanumeric information packet with changing content) that is sent to your device by the server of the website you are visiting. Cookies are stored in the browser programme of your computer, telephone or tablet, which can be read later by sending server. Cookies cannot be read by other websites, only the one that has placed them. Cookies inform us about the way visitors use our website. Cookies are meant to be used for administrative goals by Controller, to measure how many visitors enter the website and to make process of browsing easier by memorizing sites that were opened within website earlier.

No cookies contain personal information that could enable anyone to reach You through e-mail, telephone or post. Cookies themselves are not able to identify users, can only identify browser devices of users. In case You do not want to accept usage of cookies on the website You can set the browser You are using so that it will send You a message if there is a cookie or to inhibit cookies to be placed.

2. Approval of cookies

We place cookies on devices (computer, telephone or tablet) You use during your visit on our website. We inform You about this at the beginning of browsing our website, when the main page is loading, in a pop-up window.

If we use cookies for any other reason than providing services and offering convenient use of our website, we ask for your consent in a pop-up window. In latter case, You may change your consent to each data collection.

In case You accept cookies at the beginning You can decide to ban and delete them any time in the settings of your browsing programme. However, we inform You that without using cookies, You will not be able to reach many functions which make browsing easier, even some of our services will probably not function properly.

3. Handling settings of cookies

You can modify your setting of cookies through a pop-up window or your browser. You can ban the use of cookies by activating a setting in your browser which enables refusing all or certain cookies. These settings can usually be reached in the "Settings" or "Preferences" menu of your browser. You can get more information about using these references.

4. Types of cookies

Cookies can be session cookies appearing during work process, or persistent cookies. We also make difference between internal (comes from the first party) and external (comes from a third party) cookies. You can read about them bellow in order to understand cookies we use and why we use them.

5. Cookies valid during work process

Cookies appearing during work process make it possible for us to recognize You while visiting our website, so browser can memorize every site change or choice made from site to site. These cookies enable You to progress through various pages of a website fast and smoothly, without having to identify yourself at every page, or having to repeat processes (e.g. filling in a form). After finishing browsing a website, or closing a browser, cookies are automatically erased from your device.

6. Persistent cookies

Persistent cookies stay „persistent” on your computer for a certain period of time (days, weeks, months or years) after finishing browsing process, so they can help to recall preferences or activities of users when visiting a website later as well (e.g. by using them, username and password at that site can be stored). Until the end of expiry of validity period, saved cookies are stored on your device, however, You can delete them before determined deadlines.

7. Cookies from operator of website

These cookies come from the server of website being surfed. In this case, we are talking about cookies coming from the server storing website operated by Controller. We gave a description and details of functioning of them above. They remember IP-address of your device, pages visited during browsing, incidentally, (based on your decision) your username and password.

Thus You can avoid repeating processes - when opening a new website or returning to a website - through opening the same pages, or - based on your decision - You do not need to identify yourself or log in again and again. We use cookies in order to provide our registered users appropriate entitlements; when users enter website, they get necessary entitlements. These cookies do not store any other information related to this, neither time of entry, nor who entered, we simply check entry entitlement with them.

These cookies are so-called work process cookies valid during browsing time. This means when somebody starts surfing the website, cookies are activated, and are valid until maximum of 15 minutes after the last activity, or are deleted when logging out.

An exception is a cookie that remembers - according to your decision - your log in data on your device.

8. Cookies coming from a third party

Cookies from a third party do not come from Controller or server that stores the website. These cookies are stored by Your computer, telephone or tablet as well during Your visit as follows:

9. Google cookies

Files of Google Analytics© are used to monitor sites and collect information about the use of webpages (number of visitors, visited sites, visitors' place of living, what other websites visitors have entered before, which browser they use, which operation system they use, which internet service they use, parameters of monitor visitors use, time of entering to the website and time of leaving it). We use these pieces of information to create statistics and improve our website.

These pieces of data are also available for Google Ireland Ltd. (Gordon House, Barrow Street, Dublin 4, Ireland), owner and operator of Google Analytics. Google Ireland Ltd. uses these pieces of information to forward specific advertisement to users, too. Google Ireland Ltd. puts together a group of interests based on browsing habits: it links data collected by cookies and IP address of browser device. Then it forwards specific advertisements to the device. For further information please visit the following websites:
